About the Exhibition

CAPE's arts integration model challenges conventional roles of teaching and learning by allowing students' interests and feedback to redirect curricular exploration. As students, teachers, and teaching artists co-create, their artistic investigations shift their roles between creator, learner, and educator. I Do, We Do, You Do: The Student Instructions Show reimagines the classroom as a multidirectional space for learning and positions the students as instructors of an art-making process.

Artists of all ages -- students, educators, visitors -- share the experience of following student instruction to create art and add it to the show

Artist Workshop Demonstration

Jessica Mueller
CAPE Teaching Artist

CAPE Teaching Artist Jessica Mueller will lead educators through step-by-step instruction of an arts integration project for all ages, the Power of Words + Perseverance. Educators will explore social-emotional learning concepts through mantra writing (for self and others) and by conceptualizing unique hand lettering and layout designs for posters and embroidery. Centering teacher/ student openness and personal choice at the root of the workshop, we will delve into the question, What are the words I/ a loved one/ a friend need to hear today? For older students, educators will learn to incorporate problem-solving through embroidery as the next step in this project. The dichotomy of teacher and student will become interchangeable through the text design and embroidery process as this project is designed for challenges to arise, creating the need for adaptability, problem-solving, and perseverance from all involved. This work will provide educators with project-based learning that will foster compassion and empathy (for self and others) and problem-solving skills through text-based art.

Teachers/Teaching Artist Event Talk+Workshop Main Presentation

Arturo Barrera
Art Teacher, Pasteur Elementary

Arturo Barrera will present work he created during the WorkRoom residency program and will highlight the importance of sustaining a studio practice as a CPS art teacher. He will then discuss how the instruction pieces engaged his students in the inquiry process by prompting them to conceptualize instructions as works of art that directed viewers to make art.

Artist Workshop Demonstration

Jordan Knecht
CAPE Teaching Artist

Teaching Artist Jordan Knecht will facilitate a workshop for educators around the idea of creating connections between standards through playful exploration and personal interest. This workshop utilizes intentionally disorienting instructions to lead participants through a series of collaborative art making methods including writing, drawing, sculpture, and performance. Through this process-based workshop, educators will uncover new access points to engage their curriculum, draw new connections between classroom topics, and develop ways to invite personal interests into the learning environment.
